REVIVING AUTHENTIC CHINESE CULTURE

FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS, China was known as the Divine Land. Its rich culture, said to be a gift from the heavens, valued virtue, integrity, compassion, and tolerance. Yet over the past 60 years of communist rule, this glorious heritage has been almost destroyed...

Formed in 2006 in New York, Shen Yun strives to revive authentic Chinese culture and share its beauty with the world.

THE BEAUTY OF DIVINE BEINGS DANCING

Shen Yun means "the beauty of divine beings dancing." The name expresses what Shen Yun aspires to achieve—an experience so profound that it evokes a sense of the heavens.

"Mesmerizing! Reclaiming the divinely inspired cultural heritage of China!"

—Donna Karan, fashion designer

"A distinct sound... So expressive!"

—Kerry Stratton, conductor of Toronto Concert Orchestra

TWO CLASSICAL TRADITIONS, ONE GLORIOUS SOUND

FROM THE MOMENT the gong is struck to herald the start of the show, you know you are in for something special. Shen Yun's one-of-a-kind orchestra masterfully blends the classical traditions of East and West. Ancient Chinese instruments lead all-original compositions created for each dance.

Experience a refreshing new sound.

Man charged in foot-fetish spree

Tanning salon assaults. 28-year-old surrenders to police after series of incidents involving shoe theft and foot-licking

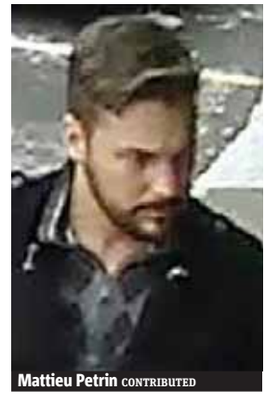
An Innisfil, Ont., man has been charged in connection with a string of thefts and assaults involving foot licking.

On Nov. 19 at about 3:45 p.m., a man entered a tanning salon near Yonge and 16th Avenue in Richmond Hill.

He asked a woman there if he could see her shoe, saying he was shopping for shoes, according to York Regional Police. The man then smelled her shoe and fled with it, police said.

At around 11 a.m. the next day, a man entered another Richmond Hill tanning salon, near Yonge and Canyon Hill.

He approached a woman and asked about her boots. Police allege that he then grabbed her leg, removed her boot and sock, and licked her foot, and then fled with the woman's boot and sock.



Mattieu Petrin CONTRIBUTED

An investigation revealed similar incidents at tanning salons in Aurora, Innisfil and Bradford, police said.

After police made a public appeal for information, a man turned himself in to police in Newmarket on Wednesday.

Mattieu Petrin, 28, faces four charges of sexual assault, sexual interference with a person under 16, three charges of theft under $5,000 and robbery.

Universities and colleges launch stand against ISIL

Toronto campuses. Among those fighting group's attempts to 'reach' students

GILBERT NGABO
gilbert.ngabo@metronews.ca

Universities and colleges across the country are fighting back as a Toronto-area imam says more young Muslim Canadians are joining the ranks of Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and other extremist groups.

About 200 young people have left Canada to fight alongside ISIL and other groups in recent months. As many as 90 cases are being investigated within the country, said Imam Farhan Iqbal, imam at Baitul Islam in Vaughan.

"The extremist ideology has the potential to grow if nothing is done to stop it," he said, noting that such extremist influence is a big concern for the Muslim community.

Those who join the fighting groups are attracted by false promises of wealth and power, Iqbal said. The groups, he said, have nothing to do with Islam as a religion. But young people are often led to believe that they do.

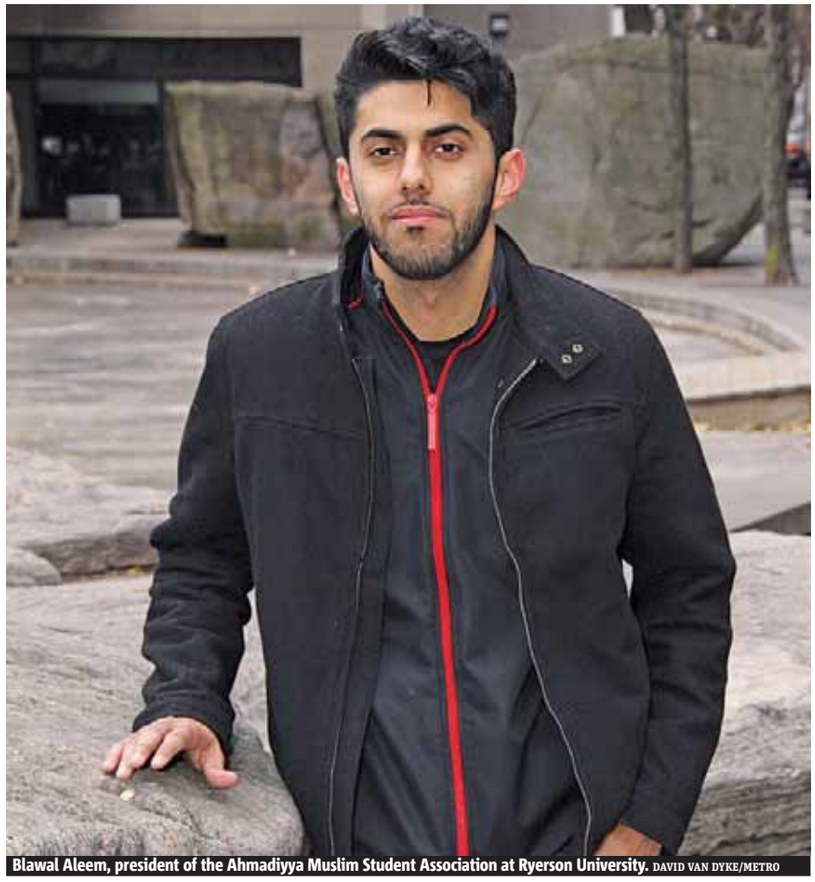
"The overwhelming majority of Muslims are peaceloving, and our basic ideology is to counter the extremist ideology," he said.

The imam will be speaking Friday at a Ryerson University event organized as part of Stop the CrISIS — a campaign using the group's alternate name, ISIS, that aims to counter attempts at recruiting students from college and university campuses. Similar events will be taking place at 45 universities and colleges across the country.

The campaign, which also includes efforts at the University of Toronto and York University, is described as "a riveting, eye-opening look at guarding against radicalization." It was started by the Ahmadiyya Muslim Youth Association.

"We want to condemn ISIS (ISIL) and let people know it does not represent Islam," said Blawal Aleem, president of the Muslim student association at Ryerson University. "As the youth, students are vulnerable so we want to educate them before (it) reaches them."

ISIL jihadist Mohammed Ali, also known as Abu Turaab, took to social media last month to say he is a former Ryerson student and used online platforms to promote extremist opinions.



Blawal Aleem, president of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Student Association at Ryerson University. DAVID VAN DYKE/METRO

Quoted

"The only reason why ISIS (ISIL) is growing is because people keep joining. If we can stop that, (it) will cease to exist."

Blawal Aleem, Muslim Student Association, Ryerson University

Both his Twitter and ask.com accounts were suspended, only to resurface some time later.

Aleem said people such as Abu Turaab represent an isolated section of the population with personal problems, mental issues or drug addicts. But, he added, they can be dangerous if not stopped.

"I just found out that Abu was actually expelled from Ryerson," said Aleem, a fourth-year student studying business technology management. "These are troubled individuals and if he is depressed and finds ISIS (ISIL), he'll say, 'Ah, now I have something to belong to."

Sexual impropriety.
Doctor still practising

A Toronto pediatrician who has faced sexual misconduct allegations three times, dating back to 1979, is still practising while awaiting his latest College of Physicians and Surgeons penalty hearing in January.

Dr. Eleazar Noriega, 70, has been found guilty of sexual impropriety and sexual abuse in two of the three cases.

He pleaded no-contest in 2003 to allegations of inappropriately touching a 17-year-old patient's breasts and genitals. The College suspended him for nine months and put restrictions on his licence, allowing him to see female patients only with a chaperone present.

Noriega was acquitted by a jury in a criminal trial on the same matter.

In 2008, he faced a similar allegation relating to a nine-year-old patient, but a disciplinary committee ruled the allegation had not been proven. A criminal charge was laid in the matter and later withdrawn.

The media attention of the 2008 case prompted a third complainant to come forward with allegations dating back to 1979, when she was 15.

In that case, the college's disciplinary committee this year found Noriega "inappropriately rubbed the clitoris of a teenage female patient during a medical appointment," according to the Nov. 3 decision posted the College's website.

A criminal charge was also laid in the case, but later dropped.

It is the second time the college ruled against the doctor in the 1979 case. In 2011, a hearing into the same allegations found him guilty of sexual impropriety. His licence was revoked.

Noriega successfully appealed the ruling. The Court found the hearing didn't have a "critical examination" of his denial and reversed the decision to revoke Noriega's licence. It directed he practise with the gender restrictions previously imposed on him by the College.

He has been back on the job since February.

'Secret' TDSB payment was an out-of-court settlement

Donna Quan, TDSB'S director of education, wanted to correct "erroneous statements" about the "'mysterious' and 'undocumented' payment."

Catering invoices.
$203,696.35 deal with Neo City Café covers unpaid invoices from 2010 to 2013

A $200,000 payment the director of the Toronto District School Board authorized — for which she has been criticized by some trustees, who called it undocumented and secretive — was an out-of-court settlement negotiated by the board's lawyer with a catering company after several years of unpaid invoices.

A confidential package of documents given to trustees during a private session Wednesday night provided details of the settlement that some trustees had been seeking, including invoices and copies of emails from superintendents and principals verifying that snacks, breakfasts or lunches were provided by Neo City Café for at-risk kids enrolled in summer programs.

Copies of those documents and invoices were obtained by Torstar News Service.

In a recent email to board chair Mari Rutka, included in the package, director of education Donna Quan asks her to "please let me know when you're available for a conversation on this matter, as it would be important to the TDSB organization to correct asap the erroneous statements about the 'mysterious' and 'undocumented' payment."

Board spokesman Ryan Bird said he could not comment on the Neo City matter, but that "this information was provided verbally on several occasions, including Administration, Finance and Accountability Committee meetings in May and October (of 2014), as no documentation was previously requested.

Tory sets priorities before taking office

State-of-the-city address. Mayor-elect not talking financial details until budget process starts in January

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
jessica.smithcross@metronews.ca

Mayor-elect John Tory gave a state-of-the-city-address on Thursday, five days before he officially takes office.
COLIN MCCONNELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

John Tory has outlined the key issues he plans to tackle as mayor of Toronto.

But fixing all those problems will require money, and Tory's not talking details until the city's budget process starts in January. He gave a state-of-the-city speech Thursday, five days before he takes office.

Transit and congestion

"The TTC system is still reeling from cuts imposed by council in 2011 and again in 2012," Tory said.

He said he has asked TTC head Andy Byford to examine how best to improve service quickly, including finding more buses to put on roads. Tory said he wants to restore service levels — particularly on 41 bus routes — to what they were prior to the cuts, "subject to our ability to pay for it."

During the election campaign, he promised not to increase TTC fares and said he'd like to look elsewhere for money to improve service. But, pointedly, he wouldn't repeat the fare promise on Thursday when speaking to media.

Housing and homelessness

Tory said the state of housing is in crisis.

He pointed specifically to a lack of affordable and subsidized housing. Meanwhile, rent is high and vacancy rates are low. He didn't offer any specific solutions.

"This problem will not be solved with the resources of city taxpayers alone," he said.

If the city doesn't get funding from other levels of government, there will be dire consequences at Toronto Community Housing, he warned.

"The number of uninhabitable TCHC units increased from 56 units in 2010 to 118 in 2014 and will increase to 4,000 units to 2018," he said.

Poverty

Tory called poverty rates in the city too high, highlighting the 29 per cent of children who live in poverty.

He said he supports creating a child poverty reduction strategy, which has already been requested by council, and will take action when it's complete.

The budget

Tory said he's been briefed on the city's finances.

"The city continues to experience severe fiscal pressures," he said.

"That is notwithstanding the fact that services have been cut and user fees have increased, we still struggle to meet the city's needs."

Tory said he would look to find efficiencies in the city budget, particularly in the city's management of real estate, a promise made during the campaign. As for property taxes, he repeated his promise Thursday to keep them "at or below the rate of inflation."

Tory on (police) board

'Not at all satisfied'

Mayor-elect John Tory will sit on the Toronto Police Services Board and is dropping councillors Frances Nunziata and Michael Thompson, who is vice-chair, from the civilian oversight body, Torstar News Service has learned.

"I am not at all satisfied with the overall state of the relationship between the police services board, the police service itself and the community," Tory said Thursday.

Tory said he wants to place a "very high priority" on building confidence in the police service by focusing on "continuous reform and updating of police practices."

Sun News host ordered to pay $80K

Ezra Levant THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sun News host Ezra Levant has been ordered to pay $80,000 in damages for libelling a Saskatchewan lawyer, according to a Superior Court decision released Thursday evening.

Khurram Awan launched the $100,000 suit in response to a series of blog posts in which Levant labeled him a liar and anti-Semitic during a 2008 B.C. Human Rights Tribunal hearing. Awan was one of a group of students who testified at the hearing to express concern over a Maclean's magazine article he considered to be Islamophobic.

Awan's complaint alleged the posts, many of which were headlined, "Awan, the liar," hindered his job search. Justice Wendy Matheson said Levant primarily relied on the fair comment defence.

In her reasoning, Matheson said the term "liar" read as a statement of fact, not comment.

"As for the nature and seriousness of the defamatory statements, they are extremely serious. They go to the heart of both the plantiff's reputation as a lawyer and as a member of our society," she wrote.

Ghomeshi seeks union grievance

Fighting firing.
Ghomeshi's union may not support his grievance of wrongful dismissal, however

Now that Jian Ghomeshi is out on $100,000 bail, his path through the criminal justice system is well understood: pre-trial and maybe trial, possibly a plea and, if not, a verdict.

No matter what happens in court, Ghomeshi will still have an opportunity to make the case that he was wrongfully dismissed by the CBC through a union grievance.

But it remains unclear whether the union will support his bid.

When Ghomeshi filed a $55-million lawsuit last month, several labour lawyers publicly pointed out that as an employee in a unionized workplace, he did not have the right to sue without first going through the grievance process.

Earlier this week, Ghomeshi dropped his lawsuit and his union confirmed that he had requested it grieve his firing.

From the union:

In a statement posted online Thursday, CMG's national president, Carmel Smyth, didn't name Ghomeshi, but wrote about the grievance process in the light of the "very public airing of a dismissal."

"In each case, when a member who has been fired asks us to file a grievance, we must be careful to do so in a timely manner, and then we will further investigate the circumstances before making a decision about whether the grievance is valid, supportable, or winnable," wrote Smyth.

"The grievance that was filed ... will proceed through the usual process. This includes discussions with the CBC and the possibility of the case being decided by an arbitrator," the Canadian Media Guild said in a statement posted on its website Tuesday, adding that because grievances are confidential, no further details would be provided.

The CMG did not return Torstar News Service's calls for comment, but it appears that the grievance could be on hold.

"Often when there is a parallel criminal proceeding, the grievance and arbitration process is put on hold. Nothing, though, has been decided one way or the other at this point," said Sean Fitzpatrick, a lawyer who acts for the CMG, in an email to Torstar.

While the union waits to see what happens in the courtroom, it is probably looking at the specifics of Ghomeshi's firing to determine whether his case is worth pursuing, said Stephen Shore, a labour and employment lawyer not involved in the case.

"It's the union that will make decisions with respect to the grievance, not the individual," Shore said.

If the union decides not to pursue the grievance, Ghomeshi would have one last recourse. He could make a complaint to the Canada Industrial Relations Board that he wasn't fairly represented by his union. Such complaints "aren't rare, but they are rarely successful," Shore said.

Genetic testing: Knowledge doesn't always mean power

When Metro Toronto reporter Jessica Smith Cross learned a genetics-testing service, 23andme, is offering Canadians a $199 mail-in test, she was curious: How much could she learn from her DNA and how much should she learn? Today, she decides whether she wants to know if she has the gene linked to Alzheimer's.

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

It's all in your genes

- This is the last in a three-part series in which reporter Jessica Smith Cross — who took 23andme's new mail-in genetic spit test — delves into the implications of increasingly easy testing in the complicated legal and ethical Canadian landscape.
- Read the whole package at metronews.ca

Metro's Jessica Smith Cross checks the 23andme website. Smith Cross was eager to learn about her predisposition to wet ear wax and about how fast she metabolizes coffee (slowly), but it was a tough decision for her to learn whether she had the genetic variant linked to Alzheimer's. METRO

Standing in my kitchen, cooking tacos, my hands shaky, something in me snapped.

That afternoon I'd opened my results from 23andme, a Silicon Valley company that recently has begun offering a new mail-in DNA-testing kit for medical information in Canada.

The analysis of my genes said a lot about me: that I'm predisposed to have wet rather than dry earwax, have muscles built for sprinting rather than marathons and metabolize coffee slowly. I have none of the genes for major recessive disorders such as cystic fibrosis that could pose a risk to a future child. I do have the faulty genes that cause hemochromatosis, a condition where the body absorbs too much iron, and though I should talk to a doctor, I'll be OK.

But the one result I did not check — and that 23andme.com keeps behind a separate digital wall, forcing you to think twice — is whether or not I have the variant of the APOE gene that determines my risk for Alzheimer's disease.

I have a family history of dementia. For weeks, waiting for the results to be processed, I had been obsessing over whether or not to look at the results. Going to sleep at night, waking up in the morning, tuning out conversations with others, my mind kept returning to the question: do I want to know?

Rarely a Smith family dinner goes by without someone making a dark joke about the day they'll lose their mind. Would learning I have a low or normal risk ease my fears? Would a high risk change my life?

Is there any statistic — any percentage chance — of ending up alone in my own mind, disconnected by dementia from everyone I love, that I could accept? And what will my results, good or bad, say about my parents? The answer was something I couldn't unlearn.

In the weeks leading up to that afternoon, I decided: No. Not at 30. Not for a disease that had no prevention or cure. I did not want to know.

But now, standing in the kitchen while my husband sat at the computer making jokes about my earwax results, I was struck: only knowing would quiet the questions.

In the spotlight

Genetic testing was thrown into the spotlight last year when actress Angelina Jolie announced to the world via The New York Times that she has a "faulty" BRCA1 gene, which gives her an 87 per cent chance of developing breast cancer and a 50 per cent chance of ovarian cancer. So she had a preventative double mastectomy.

"I choose not to keep my story private because there are many women who do not know that they might be living under the shadow of cancer," she wrote in The Times. "It is my hope that they, too, will be able to get gene tested, and that if they have a high risk they, too, will know that they have strong options."

Dr. Steven Narod, director of the familial breast-cancer research unit and Women's College Research Institute, is a co-discoverer of the BRCA gene.

Narod advocates that all women with Jewish ancestry, which puts them at risk for the most common BRCA mutations, should get tested and learn of their options regarding preventive action.

But he is critical of 23andme for offering this test result for Alzheimer's.

"Do you want to test for dementia? Well, do you?" Narod asked me in a phone interview, unaware that I had been obsessing over this very question. "Why do I want to know I'm going to be demented in 10 years?"

"The 23andme philosophy — and it's a philosophy, not a science — is that people should be entitled to know the results of these tests even if there was no good to come from it, even if there's no utility," he said.

"Even if there was no preventive action to take. I don't believe that."

Narod said he believes widespread direct-to-consumer BRCA testing is a good idea but he won't advocate testing other genes. Genetic testing should be limited to situations where the patient is actually at risk of the condition they're being testing for and, if they have the genetic predisposition, there is something that can be done about it.

The moment of truth

23andme locks the BRCA and APOE test results, which means that before customers are given their results they are presented with extra information about those genes and must confirm another level of consent to receive the information. They have the option of leaving it locked.

But I knew that I couldn't. The questions were too much.

With my husband standing beside me — ready to pick up the pieces — I clicked on my results.

And I burst out laughing. One of those long, dark, "you have got to be f–ing kidding me" laughs.

My results were a "no call."

That means the first test 23andme did on my APOE gene got only a partial result. According to 23andme, the two genetic markers the company uses to determine Alzheimer's risk are harder to distinguish than most.

The partial results aren't good. Sparing the details, it means that neither copy of my APOE gene has the relatively rare good variant that is protective against Alzheimer's. I have either the average or the bad — or one of each — and I still don't know which.

I emailed 23andme and asked what could be done, and a nice customer-service person emailed back and offered to run the test again, if I wanted. And emailed again, asking what I wanted. And again. And again, to say they were closing this customer-service file because they haven't heard back from me.

They won't, I think. Because I really don't want to know.

APOE gene

23andme tests customers for variants of the APOE gene linked to Alzheimer's disease. People have two copies of the APOE gene, and each is either E2, E3 or E4.

- The E4 variant raises the risk of Alzheimer's. Having one copy of the E4 is relatively common and slightly raises the risk, while having two copies is much less common and significantly raises the risk.
- For example, two per cent of Caucasians have two E4 variants, giving them a 51 to 68 per cent of getting Alzheimer's, compared to the average risk of 10 to 17 per cent, according to studies cited by 23andme.

Night of lights

3, 2, 1 ... lights! Toronto will officially kick off the holiday season Saturday by lighting its giant Christmas tree in Nathan Phillips Square — and having a great big party

GILBERT NGABO
gilbert.ngabo@metronews.ca

What to expect

- It's called the Cavalcade of Lights, and it starts at 7 p.m. with an opening ceremony.
- The tree will be set aglow at 7:15 p.m.
- An hour of music and dance performances follow with fireworks set for 8:20 p.m.
- Then, there's more music and an ice-skating party at 9:30 p.m.

The talent

The city's rounded up musician Adrian "X" Eccleston to oversee the music. Among other things, he's worked as musical director for Drake's 2013 Grammy Award winning album Take Care.

Saturday's performers include:

- The Cavalcade Drumline, which includes talent from a schools across Toronto
- Retrocity
- Kardinal Offishall
- Kellylee Evan
- Wes Williams, a.k.a. Maestro Fresh Wes
- Collective Elite dance company
- Shad
- DJ Grouch

What about the real star?

It's a 65-foot Christmas tree that landed in the square Nov. 8 on a flat bed truck from Bancroft, Ont.

DAVID VAN DYKE/METRO

What does it take to bring all that holiday cheer to a city as big as Toronto? Here's a glimpse:

- 12,500 feet of LED lights
- 700 ornaments
- Eight people, and a crane, to get the tree in place once it arrives
- Two weeks' worth of decorating

REACHING FOR THE YELLOW ALARM STRIP? THINK 9-1-1

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

Earlier this week, the TTC held a joint event with Toronto Fire, Police and Paramedic Services to promote the proper use of the emergency alarm on TTC subway and Scarborough rapid transit trains.

As any regular subway or SRT rider knows, delays due to activations of the alarm are a regular source of frustration.

Many of the activations do not constitute an actual emergency. To date this year, there have been more than 2,600 alarm activations causing almost 120 hours of delays. Close to 70 per cent of these activations were deemed to be non-emergencies.

To address this, and to reserve use of the alarm for genuine emergencies, we are renaming the yellow strip to "EMERGENCY ALARM" to reflect its core purpose. This move is also intended to ensure that emergency responders are not called unnecessarily when their help may have been needed at some more pressing situation elsewhere.

At this week's event, we joined with emergency services personnel to stress the need to treat the emergency alarm as you would a call to 9-1-1. If there is a genuine emergency that requires the presence of fire, police or paramedics, the alarm should be used. If, however, you simply feel unwell, or if there is some other non-emergency situation, we ask you to exit the train at the next station so that we can provide the assistance you need at a station without bringing service to a halt. If in doubt, press the Emergency Alarm and train crews will call for emergency responders.

This change is part of our overall strategy to make your service more reliable. We have other work ongoing to cut delays, but by restricting use of the alarm to genuine emergencies you are helping us to keep the TTC moving.

To learn more about use of the alarm and emergency features on the subway and SRT, visit the TTC's YouTube channel at Youtube.com/Official-TTCchannel.

EMPLOYEE PROFILE

Name: Regino Pullon
Position: Carpenter
Years of Service: 18

Carpentry is in my blood, passed down from my grandfather, to my father and on to me. In the Philippines, I was a popular artist for local festivals. Now, I draw blueprints for unique projects. While most TTC carpenters work out in the field, I stay in the shop, building custom frames, trophy cases, wooden doors, tables, kitchen counters, etc. I love the creative freedom that comes with the job.

TTC STUFF-THE-BUS THIS HOLIDAY SEASON

This weekend, on Saturday, Nov. 29 and Sunday, Nov. 30, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., TTC employees will hold the annual Stuff-the-Bus Toy Drive in support of the Canadian Centre for Abuse Awareness. This year, six of the TTC's 12-metre buses will be set up as drop-off stops for new, unwrapped toys at the following Walmart locations:

- 165 N Queen Street (Hwy. 427/ Queensway)
- 799 Milner Avenue (Milner/Morningside)
- 1900 Eglinton Avenue (Eglinton/ Pharmacy)
- 2525 St. Clair Avenue West (St. Clair/Runnymede)
- 3132 Eglinton Avenue East (Eglinton/Markham)
- 3757 Keele Street (Keele/Finch).

TTC bus operator Kevin Kane and his team of volunteer operators have been conducting Stuff-the-Bus holiday toy drives since 2007.

To date, the toy drive has helped more than 3,500 families, and 12,000 children, have a Christmas. The toy drive has collected approximately $250,000 worth of toys since it first started in 2007.

CHESTER SECOND EXIT COMMUNITY MEETING

The TTC will be holding a community meeting for residents to review second exit locations recommended by the Chester Station second exit local working group, and provide feedback. Second exits are designed to improve customer safety and convenience. Since last spring, the TTC has been working with members of the local community to recommend and evaluate potential locations, based on a framework developed by a panel of experts.

Ikea monkey raising funds for new home

Story Book Farm. Sanctuary hoping to relocate by spring

Crowdfunding

An online campaign was launched on Tuesday and had raised about $3,400 by Thursday afternoon.

- A $10 donation to the fundraising campaign yields a "virtual kiss" from Darwin in the form of a video and an e-note, a $200 donation nabs a tour of the sanctuary and $500 results in five visits to Darwin in one year.

The Ikea monkey is in the market for a new home and is looking for help purchasing it.

Darwin the monkey — who sparked a social media frenzy in December 2012 when he was found wandering outside an Ikea store in Toronto wearing a shearling coat — has been living at Ontario's Story Book Farm Primate Sanctuary ever since a court placed him in its care.

The sanctuary in Sunderland, Ont., east of Toronto, is now hoping to relocate and has launched an online crowdfunding campaign that aims to raise $490,000.

Darwin features prominently in the sanctuary's call for funds but the establishment notes its larger new home will also cater to 41 other monkeys.

Animal services seized the monkey and sent it to Story Book Farm, prompting its owner, Yasmin Nakhuda, to sue the sanctuary in an effort to get it back. An Ontario Superior Court justice then ruled that Darwin is a wild animal and that Nakhuda's ownership ended with its escape from her car.

The sanctuary says Darwin has now grown into a "much larger, energetic and rambunctious juvenile."

It says its new home will have wide open spaces and forested enclosures for Darwin and its fellow sanctuary residents.

PC race. Doug Ford bows out

Doug Ford announces in Toronto on Thursday that he will not run for Ontario PC leadership.
VINCE TALOTTA/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Controversial Toronto city councillor Doug Ford announced Thursday he would not join the Ontario Progressive Conservative leadership contest, something he'd been considering since finishing a strong second in the city's mayoral race last month.

"I'm here to announce that I won't be running for the PC leadership," Ford told reporters gathered at the family business, Deco Labels, for the announcement.

Ford said he'd received a lot of support and encouragement, but decided "literally last night" not to become a candidate.

"It's been the most difficult of my entire life," he said. "It was tougher than deciding whether to run for mayor, run for council, any decision I've ever made. This by far was the toughest."

Ford said there are five "strong" candidates to replace Tim Hudak, who resigned after the Liberals won a majority in the June 12 election, the Conservatives' fourth consecutive loss.

He endorsed Christine Elliott, the deputy PC leader and widow of former finance minister Jim Flaherty, who had close ties with the Ford family. THE CANADIAN PRESS

U.S. economy boon for Ontario: Forecast

2015 to bring growth. Business investment should increase

Stronger business investment and a robust U.S. economy will finally pull Ontario's economy out of its doldrums in 2015, according to a new forecast from the Conference Board of Canada.

Canadian provinces from coast to coast will see stronger growth next year with Newfoundland and Labrador, Alberta and Manitoba leading the pack, the forecast said.

"The provinces are performing better and we expect that to continue over the near term, especially next year as we see much stronger growth in the U.S. economy," Marie-Christine Bernard, associate director, provincial and territorial forecast, said in an interview.

"That will help in terms of exports and that should bring back some business investment which did not perform very well this year."

Ontario's economy came to a crawl in the first few months of 2014 as construction activity slowed and consumers took a hiatus. But the province bounced back in the April-to-June quarter.

Real GDP, excluding inflation, is expected to grow by 1.8 per cent in 2014, rising to 2.6 per cent next year, the forecast said.

The province has seen strong job creation this year, with the unemployment rate falling to 6.5 per cent in October. That's its lowest level in six years.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Growth in the East

Next year, the country's strongest growth — a robust rate of 3.4 per cent — will come from Newfoundland and Labrador, according to the forecast, as maintenance and technical difficulties that held back oil production at the Terra Nova and North Amethyst fields are cleared away, the forecast said.

GTAA. Pearson launches flight tracker mobile app

If you've ever been stranded at an airport, you know the feeling of impending doom. You're running out of food, water and patience, and suddenly your baby's last diaper looks suspiciously full.

Pearson airport says it can help.

After thousands of passengers faced flight delays or cancellations due to bad weather last winter, the Greater Toronto Airports Authority (GTAA) launched a formal review, looking into operations, communications and customer service. Passengers, airlines and employees were asked for feedback.

"(After) every irregular operation we have, we look in the mirror and say, 'OK, what can we do better?'" said Scott Armstrong, GTAA's communications manager.

The airport's enhanced Winter Weather Operations Approach includes a mobile flight tracking app, more widespread Wi-Fi access and access to diapers and water during extended delays.

Launched this week, Pearson's mobile app lets passengers track their flight and receive push notifications for schedule updates.

Media magnate enters race for PQ leadership

Parti Québécois. Pierre Karl Péladeau said that if elected, he would be willing to put his shares in Quebecor in a trust

Categorically stating that achieving Quebec independence is his only political goal, media magnate Pierre Karl Péladeau announced Thursday he will seek the leadership of the Parti Québécois.

Péladeau confirmed what people had long been expecting when a university student asked him after a speech whether he was going to take the plunge.

When another student asked him what could motivate a rich man like him to want to become PQ leader, he repeated the dramatic phrase that marked his entry into politics last spring: "To make Quebec a country."

Quoted

"I think it's clear that I've committed to achieving Quebec sovereignty. It is my objective, my only objective."

Pierre Karl Péladeau, who is running in the leadership race for Parti Québécois

The one difference this time was the absence of any fist-pump to accompany the declaration.

The gesture and the words were widely considered to have a negative impact on the Parti Québécois just days into the election campaign.

The stunning move forced the PQ to address an issue it normally avoids come election time.

Pierre Karl Peladeau holds up his nomination papers to run for the leadership of the Parti Québécois in Montreal on Thursday. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Later on Thursday, Péladeau made his way to PQ headquarters, where he was again grilled by reporters. Asked what his main theme will be during the leadership campaign, he replied without hesitation: "Sovereignty."

Polls have suggested the controlling shareholder of Quebecor Inc. would be the front-runner in the race to succeed Pauline Marois as leader.

Peladeau said that, if elected leader, he will spend the next few years explaining what he considers the benefits of sovereignty to Quebecers.

The man, known in Quebec simply as PKP, has been criticized in some quarters for refusing to sell his shares in Quebecor, whose extensive media holdings include the TVA television network, Le Journal de Montreal and the Vidéotron cable company.

He repeated on Thursday he would be willing to put his shares in a trust if he becomes PQ leader. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fighting Ebola virus

Military medical team heading to Sierra Leone

Canadian military medical specialists are getting ready to deploy to the epicentre of the fight against the deadly Ebola virus, and the federal government is encouraging private health care workers to join them.

Teams of military medical specialists will be deployed to Sierra Leone for two months at a time over a six-month period beginning at the end of December.

The government says up to 40 Canadian Armed Forces health-care and support staff will deploy to the West African country at any given time.

The military doctors, nurses, medics and others will work alongside military medics from the United Kingdom at the Kerry Town Treatment Unit. Their task will be to treat local and international health care workers who have been exposed to the Ebola virus — but not the local population. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pot ads must follow rules

Federal guidelines. Licensed producers told they can't make treatment claims, promise cures in ads

Health Canada has ordered the country's medical marijuana growers to stop advertising their products with treatment claims and promotional images.

The federal department issued letters this week to licensed pot producers, warning them to overhaul their advertising and marketing content on websites and social media by Jan. 12.

Health Canada says failure to comply could lead to suspension or revocation of the company's commercial licence. Individualized letters were sent to 20 of Canada's 22 licensed growers, spelling out what each company needs to change to comply with rules governing advertising of medical cannabis.

Those rules prohibit companies from advertising "any food, drug, cosmetic or device to the general public as a treatment, preventative or cure for any of the diseases, disorders or abnormal physical states."

Health Canada says producers should provide limited information to prospective clients, including the brand name, proper or common name of the strain, price per gram, cannabinoid content, and the company's contact details.

Fake cash. Canada's laws not for U.S. benefit: Feds

The federal industry minister is dismissing the United States' request that Canada's proposed anti-counterfeiting laws also help keep fakes out of their country.

The laws are for Canadians, James Moore told a Senate committee Thursday.

"The idea Canada would act as a customs agent for the United States is, frankly, not something that's on the table," Moore said.

"The scope of this is protecting Canadians and the Canadian domestic market."

Bill C-8, the Combating Counterfeit Products Act, is aimed at stopping the estimated $38 million worth of fake goods flowing into the Canadian market every year by beefing up the powers border agents have to stop them, among other things.

But the law only allows them to stop parcels intended for sale or distribution in Canada — not those just passing through.

That's what has the U.S. upset.

It was one of the first things raised by U.S. Ambassador Bruce Heyman when he took up his post this past spring.

"Given our highly integrated supply and production chain, a dangerously substandard counterfeit airliner part or car airbag in either of our countries is a threat to the citizens of both," said Heyman during his first public speech in Canada in June, according to published remarks.

"We therefore believe it is in the best interest of the U.S. AND Canada to expand this legislation to include in-transit goods.

"We should have laws and procedures stopping these illegal goods at our shared perimeter."

A spokesman from the embassy wasn't available for comment Thursday as the embassy was closed for American Thanksgiving.

Pardon applications

Board struggles with backlog

Almost 7,000 outstanding pardon applications are in limbo as the Parole Board of Canada struggles to clear a backlog created when the Conservative government changed the rules in 2010.

The parole board has announced it is currently focusing its efforts on pardons for lesser summary convictions rather than more serious indictable offences. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Magnotta trial

Accused's actions called 'organized'

A Crown witness says evidence at Luka Rocco Magnotta's trial suggests his actions after Jun Lin's slaying in May 2012 were highly organized, inconsistent with schizophrenia. Dr. Gilles Chamberland testified that Magnotta, over a 48-hour span, dismembered and disposed of Lin's body, emptied his apartment and prepared for a trip to Europe. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebecer. Trial lawyer appointed to fill vacancy on Supreme Court

An experienced Quebec trial lawyer has been appointed to fill a vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Suzanne Cote, who has been a member of the Quebec bar since 1981, is the first woman from private practice to be directly appointed to the Supreme Court.

She is head of the Montreal litigation group at law firm Osler, Hoskin & Harcourt LLP.

"With her wealth of legal knowledge and decades of experience, Ms. Cote will be a tremendous benefit to this important Canadian institution," Prime Minister Stephen Harper said in a statement.

"Her appointment is the result of broad consultations with prominent members of the Quebec legal community, and we believe she will be a valued addition to Canada's highest court."

Cote's appointment to the nine-member bench takes effect Dec. 1.

Charges dropped in B.C. protest

Contempt charges. Kinder Morgan used wrong GPS co-ordinates in seeking injunction on pipeline

A B.C. Supreme Court judge has dropped civil contempt charges against dozens of protesters who were arrested at an anti-pipeline protest near Vancouver.

The order came Thursday after Kinder Morgan acknowledged it had used incorrect GPS co-ordinates when it sought an injunction related to its Trans Mountain pipeline.

More than 100 people have been arrested on Burnaby Mountain, including Grand Chief Stewart Phillip of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, who crossed a police line around a Kinder Morgan work site earlier Thursday.

Nearly all of the arrested protesters were charged with civil contempt for violating the injunction, but the judge handling the case suggested during Thursday's hearing that the errors in the initial court order put those charges in doubt.

"What's happened thus far is that apparently people have been arrested on the basis of an order that refers to some other piece of property," Judge Austin Cullen said, prompting laughs and jeers from the courtroom's crowded public gallery.

Cullen also revised the injunction to correct the GPS co-ordinates for the one work site that is still active.

Kinder Morgan is conducting drilling at two sites on Burnaby Mountain as it prepares for a federal approval process.

Exhausted by turmoil, Egypt awaits verdict in dictator's trial

900 dead. Changing political scene now downplays criticism of Mubarak regime

Amal Shaker's 25-year-old son Ahmed was fatally shot in the back on the "Friday of Rage," one of the bloodiest days of Egypt's 2011 uprising against longtime autocrat Hosni Mubarak. Nearly four years later, she is still waiting for justice.

"We want blood for blood," she said.

Her wait is supposed to end Saturday when a verdict is expected in the 86-year-old Mubarak's trial on charges connected to the killing of more than 900 protesters against his rule. But Egypt's "trial of the century," initially watched with excitement, has largely dropped from public attention. That's partly because of how drawn out the process has been — with a trial and retrial — and partly because subsequent upheaval has flipped the political narrative.

The revolutionary fervour of 2011 has been largely extinguished, replaced among many Egyptians by exhaustion from nearly four years of turmoil. Many of the pro-democracy activists central to the uprising are in prison for attempting to protest against the new president, former army chief Abdel-Fattah el-Sissi.

"The issue is over," Ahmed Hani, a Cairo accountant, said of the trial, which he, like many, is not following closely. "What's important is to improve the country, to bring it back to its prior state, more than to take an interest in a thing like this."

When the trial began in 2011, Egyptians were initially transfixed by TV images of the former strongman, who ruled for 30 years being rolled on a gurney into the defendant's cage. In June 2012, he was convicted of failing to stop the killing of protesters and was sentenced to life in prison. But the conviction was thrown out by a higher court, and a retrial began in May 2013.

Mubarak's elected successor, Islamist Mohammed Morsi, was ousted by el-Sissi and the military after massive protests that began on June 30, 2013, against the domination of Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood. A sweeping crackdown against Islamists ensued and has widened to suppress any dissenting voices.

Now the state routinely blames all violence on Islamists and foreign conspirators. TV stations and newspapers have largely dropped criticism of Mubarak's old regime and focus all their venom on Islamists. They also at times promote a revised history, painting the 2011 uprising as part of a conspiracy to destabilize Egypt that the 2013 "revolution" corrected.

Kabul's upscale district attacked

Taliban responsible. Comes hours after suicide car-bomber struck British embassy vehicle

Taliban fighters staged an attack Thursday evening in an upscale district in the Afghan capital, Kabul. Witnesses described multiple explosions and bursts of gunfire in the Wazir Akbar Khan district, which contains numerous foreign embassies and compounds housing international agencies and companies — as well as the homes of some senior Afghan government officials.

The attack came hours after a suicide car-bomber struck a British embassy vehicle, killing five people including a British citizen.

Kabul Police Chief Gen. Mohammad Zahir said there were three explosions followed by extended gunfire.

A Taliban spokesman said the intended target was a guesthouse in the district occupied by foreigners.

The spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, refused to give further details, adding only that the target of the attack was "enemies."

Afghan police flooded into the area and locked down the surrounding streets. Footage from area security cameras showed heavily armed security forces and armoured vehicles deploying in large numbers.

The attack took place near the compound of the development agency International Relief and Development.

The agency's head of security, Tony Haslem, told The Associated Press the attack lasted about 45 minutes and he heard rocket-propelled grenades and automatic weapons being fired.

Deputy Interior Minister Mohammad Ayoub Salangi confirmed that the target of the attack was a guesthouse in the diplomatic area. He said no foreigners had been killed.

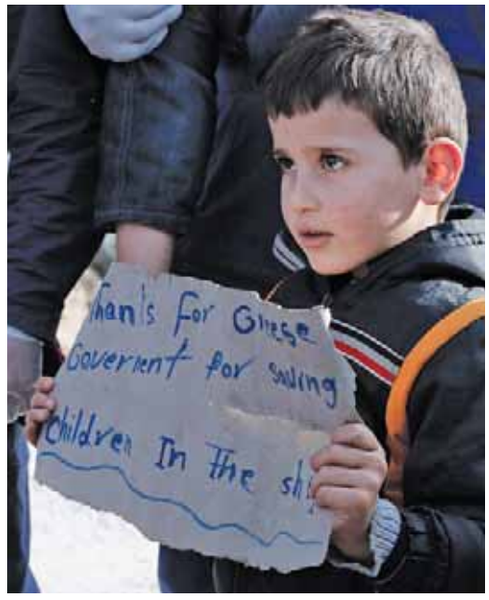
"One Nepalese guard was wounded, but all the foreigners are fine," Salangi said.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Diplomatic targets rare

Thursday's suicide bomb attack is the first on a diplomatic target in Kabul for some time, as most embassies are secured behind high concrete blast walls with razor wire and guards with automatic weapons.

- The U.S. consulate in the eastern city of Herat was attacked last year and the Indian consulate, also in Herat, was attacked in May this year.



Giving thanks in Greece

A young boy holds a paper just after disembarking from a crippled freighter carrying hundreds of refugees trying to migrate to Europe, at the coastal Cretan port of Ierapetra, Greece, on Thursday. The ship, whose 750 passengers are mostly Syrians, including children, women and elderly men, suffered engine failure on Tuesday, 70 nautical miles off Ierapetra. The migrants will be given temporary shelter at an Ierapetra indoor basketball stadium. PETROS GIANNAKOURIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ferguson

Protesters pause for Thanksgiving

Protesters in Ferguson, Mo., pressed "pause" Thursday as the city welcomed Thanksgiving, decorating boarded-up storefronts with some Dr. Seuss inspiration and gathering for church services - a stark contrast to previous days of outrage over the grand jury decision in the Michael Brown case.

Neither police nor the Missouri National Guard stood sentry outside the Ferguson police station, which has been a nexus for protesters since Monday night's announcement that Ferguson police officer Darren Wilson, who is white, wouldn't be indicted for fatally shooting the unarmed black 18-year-old in August.

On that downtown street, beneath a lighted "Season's Greetings" garland, three children used paintbrushes to decorate plywood covering many storefront windows.

South Asian summit. Eight countries sign power grid deal; Indian, Pakistani leaders share historic handshake

South Asian heads of state attending their first summit in three years reached a deal on energy sharing Thursday, but failed on two other economic agreements during a retreat where Indian and Pakistan leaders shook hands.

Foreign ministers from the eight nations signed the agreement on distribution and transmission of electricity through a common grid at the end of the two-day summit, where Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi and his Pakistani counterpart, Nawaz Sharif, smiled at each other, spoke a few words and shook hands.

The gesture between Modi and Sharif after the closing ceremony was broadcast live on television and applauded by those attending the summit.

The economic agreements left unsigned involved roads and railways connectivity.

Indian-held Kashmir

Gun battle kills 10

Heavily armed militants fought a gun battle with soldiers in the Indian-held portion of Kashmir Thursday. Four civilians were among 10 dead, authorities said.

Kashmir is divided between India and Pakistan. They have fought two wars over control of Kashmir since independence from British rule in 1947.

ISIL blocks mobile phone service in Mosul

Militants from the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) blocked all mobile phone networks in the largest Iraqi city they control, Mosul, accusing informants in the city of tipping off coalition forces to their whereabouts, residents said on Thursday.

Residents described a scene of "chaos" and "paralysis" in the city Thursday. Businesses were at a standstill, some still able to access the Internet, which operates under a different network. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Korea. Kim's sister a senior party official

North Korea has revealed that leader Kim Jong Un's younger sister is a senior official in the ruling Workers' Party, strengthening analysts' views that she is an increasingly important part of the family dynasty that runs the country.

State media on Thursday referred to Kim Yo Jong as a departmental vice director within the party's Central Committee.

Analysts say the mention could signal her growing role in supporting her brother's authoritarian rule. The siblings' late father, former leader Kim Jong Il, was seen as relying on his own sister during his 17-year rule. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Whipped into submission

Vigilante justice.
Man admits to robbery after being lashed with whips made from bull-penis sinew

The vigilantes collared the short, pot-bellied man at Cajamarca's teeming outdoor market and marched him to their storefront. He was a serial pickpocket, they said.

The assembled men and women, all wearing citizen patrol vests and wielding whips fashioned from the twisted sinew of bull penises, didn't believe his story. A dozen lashes later, he confessed, and paid $60 to a woman whose cellphone he'd allegedly stolen. He got a shower, and was let go.

"That's how we deal with this kind of thief," said the citizen patrol's leader, Fernando Chuquilin, who personally landed the last lash.

For all but the most serious crimes, this is how justice is routinely administered in the provincial capital of 200,000 people: Swiftly, harshly and painfully. And not by the state.

Instead, in response to an eroding criminal justice system, self-appointed bands of vigilantes have taken on the work of police, prosecutors and judges. The rise of these citizen enforcers, who enjoy widespread support in Cajamarca, is just one response in Latin America to the police force's failure to offer the most basic protections.

"If the police did their jobs there would be no need for us," says Chuquilin.

Ukraine's president wants justice reform

Petro Poroshenko.
Could prepare nation for EU membership

Ukraine's president set out a strongly reformist agenda during the inaugural session of parliament Thursday, calling for the immediate overhaul of a justice system he said was corrupted from the top down.

Petro Poroshenko said a successful reform program would enable Ukraine to consider applying for European Union membership within five years.

Combatting corruption and re-orienting Ukraine toward Europe, and away from Russia, have been dominant themes of national politics since former President Viktor Yanukovych was ousted in February after months of protest.

Since a vote last month that ushered in a raft of pro-Western parties, Yanukovych's Party of Regions is no longer represented in parliament, although some of his erstwhile allies were elected within the Opposition Bloc.

Poroshenko said the justice system's shortcomings posed a national security risk.

"It is quite clear that the primary reason for the low standard of life of the majority of Ukrainians is the totally corrupted government apparatus," he said.

A preliminary governing coalition was formed last week, uniting five parties intent on guiding Ukraine toward integration with Europe and potentially NATO.

Poroshenko said Ukraine should shed prohibitions forbidding it from joining military blocs such as NATO. "The non-aligned status voted for in 2010 has not been able and will not be able to guarantee the security and territorial unity of our country," he said.

The new parliament draws together a colorful variety of political figures, including crusading anti-corruption campaigners, commanders of paramilitary units fighting Russian-backed separatists in the east, and remnants of Yanukovych's entourage.

14 convicted in prostitution ring

Fourteen men have been convicted in Britain of running a sex ring that involved the abuse, rape and prostitution of girls as young as 13.

The men, all from Somali backgrounds, were convicted in two trials that ended Wednesday. Reporting restrictions were lifted Thursday.

Prosecutors said the men, in their early 20s, groomed vulnerable girls in Bristol, southwestern England, and persuaded them to have sex in return for money, drugs or alcohol.

The case is the latest in a series of trials that have exposed sexual exploitation of children in cities across Britain.

The cases have sparked criticism of local authorities for failing to protect the victims. They have also stoked racial tensions, as the perpetrators in several cases were from Pakistani backgrounds and many of the victims were white.

Study: Canada too generous to R&D

Canada needs to rethink its approach to research and development subsidies, according to a new paper by the University of Calgary's School of Public Policy.

The study, issued Thursday, argues that tax breaks for R&D performed by small firms are high by international standards and that it's likely the cost to taxpayers outweighs the benefit.

While it can be common for governments to boast about how generous they are when it comes to R&D, co-author John Lester questions whether that's something to be proud of without qualification.

"It shouldn't be cause for celebration, it should be cause for reflection," he said in an interview.

1 in 3 Canadians shopping online for holidays: Survey

Shoppers rush into a Best Buy store in Kansas for holiday shopping deals last year. In Canada, a growing number of shoppers are avoiding the crazy crowds altogether by doing their holiday shopping online, says a survey. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Far from the madding crowds. More of us than ever plan to do all of our gift-buying on the web, says a new survey

A growing number of Canadians plan to do all of their holiday shopping online this year to avoid stepping foot in maddening malls, suggests a new survey commissioned by Google.

About one in three Canadians polled online by Ipsos Reid said they would rely on e-commerce to purchase all their gifts, which was up 50 per cent compared to the results of a similar survey conducted last year.

Still, a majority of the Canadians said that while they would be doing some gift-buying research online, they would ultimately brave the crowds.

"Consumers, rather than wandering up and down on the high street or through malls, are much more purposeful now when they're making those purchase decisions. They're doing their research online prior to going into the malls and they know what they want," said Rafe Petkovic of Google Canada.

Another recent poll conducted for MasterCard Canada yielded somewhat similar results, with almost one in three Canadians saying they planned to do half or more of their holiday shopping online.

Hacking. CBC, NHL among the websites hit

A group of politically motivated hackers operating under the name the Syrian Electronic Army briefly defaced the websites of the CBC, the NHL and a number of other prominent news outlets on Thursday.

On Thursday morning, the group posted an image to its Twitter account suggesting that it had hacked the technology company Gigya, which sells social-media log-in technology that companies can integrate into their websites.

"Happy thanks giving, hope you didn't miss us! The press: Please don't pretend #ISIS are civilians," tweeted the group, which supports Syrian President Bashar al-Assad.

Some visitors to CBCnews.ca and other websites saw a pop-up message that said, "You've been hacked by the Syrian Electronic Army."

Oliver tries to quell fears over oil prices

Despite widespread concern over possible fallout from the dramatic slide in oil prices, federal Finance Minister Joe Oliver gave assurances Thursday that Ottawa had already factored lower oil prices into its fiscal forecasts.

"When we took into account the oil price decline, which had already occurred, we made the assumption that the prices would stay at the low level for the entire period," Oliver told a media availability conference on Thursday.

Oliver said that's "a relatively conservative assumption, and we'll continue to monitor the level of prices."

The finance minister's comments were delivered shortly before the OPEC oil cartel announced it would maintain production at current levels despite the oil glut on world markets that has contributed to a more than 30 per cent drop in prices from $105 US a barrel last summer.

American markets were closed for U.S. Thanksgiving on Thursday, but in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange benchmark West Texas Intermediate, crude had tumbled $4.64 to a 4-1/2-year low of $69.05 a barrel. THE CANADIAN PRESS

THE OTHER F WORD

THE KOHLER REPORT
By Rebecca Kohler

Ghomeshi's living with his mom. Cosby Show reruns have been pulled (no complaints here). Pick-up artist Julien Blanc can't get into Harrod's.

What a time we're living in! Powerful men are being held to ... reasonable standards.

It's like a huge dam made of foreskin has been broken, making way for a flood of estrogen-infused water. Yuck, but cool.

I feel like women in the Western world should be throwing some kind of solemn party right now. Maybe with grey balloons and gluten-free vegan cupcakes?

Because the celebration is weird. It's dark (can you really celebrate bad things just because they've been acknowledged?). And anyway, it feels like we've been waiting for this "party" for so long, we're all too tired to enjoy it.

We'd be celebrating the fact that we're finally being heard — I mean, we've been heard before, but there seems to be less eye-rolling now.

Fifty years ago, if a woman had gone to a reporter and said, "That radio host slapped me around and tried to choke me," chances are he would have responded, "And?"

But while these victories are big, important pieces of the pie, let's not forget to keep an eye on the pie crumbs — the little pieces of sexist pastry that get stuck under our manicures on a day-to-day basis.

Like when male co-workers call me "Sweetheart" or "Dear" (I am not your girlfriend or your grandmother, thank God).

Or the fact that women still make 74 per cent of what men make (and have that money ripped from our hands twice as quickly at places such as the dry cleaner, where our shirts cost more to clean because they fall under the derogatory category of "blouses.")

When last month's Hollaback video (displaying a woman being berated with catcalls on the streets of New York City) was released, the backlash was frightening.

Changing times

Fifty years ago, if a woman had gone to a reporter and said, "That radio host slapped me around and tried to choke me," chances are he would have responded, "And?"

Angry men (and some women) took to Twitter, asking things like, "Can't you take a compliment?"

Sure I can — from a friend, or my brother or even the guy who runs my corner store.

But when I'm walking alone at 10 p.m. and a total stranger yells, "Gimme some of that!" I feel less complimented, more afraid for my life.

Why is your right to yell more important than our right to feel safe and un-demeaned?

This is about feminism, which has somehow become a bad word.

If you look up feminist in the dictionary, all it says is: someone who believes in the political, economic and social equality of the sexes. It doesn't say man-hater; it doesn't say hairy woman (though there is a picture of Ani DiFranco).

We wouldn't be here at the weird, melancholy party (the streamers are beige) if it weren't for feminists.

It's the feminists (whether they even know they're feminists or not) that push these important issues forward like a car that's run out of gas on the road.

Without the feminists, Jian Ghomeshi wouldn't be sharing a TV tray with his mom right now.

Happy face/Sad face

From misogynists getting banned to rogue celebrity tigers, Metro weighs in on the personalities that made headlines this week:

BLACKBERRY

This week BlackBerry offered to pay iPhone users up to $550 to switch to a Passport. Awesome deal or pathetic attempt at making friends? You decide. Also: flip phones are in again!

SINGAPORE

Singapore got a thumbs-up from feminists worldwide this week when it joined a growing list of countries to ban self-proclaimed pick-up artist Julien Blanc. The American dating coach has been accused of encouraging the use of sexual violence and emotional abuse to pick up women. Dude ... no.

DOPING

Don't dope and cycle. It didn't work for Lance Armstrong and it evidently hasn't worked for William Goodfellow. The Canadian cyclist has just been barred from competition for two years after testing positive for two banned substances. Maybe he didn't watch the Oprah special.

CHINA

You may be as surprised to read this as we are to write it: China gives free medication to people living with HIV/AIDS. Yes, that China. Now if we could only get those medications to the roughly 25 million and counting people infected with HIV/AIDS in sub-Saharan Africa.

PUTIN'S TIGER

Ustin, a rare Siberian tiger released into the wild by Vladimir Putin, is behaving badly at his new home in China. The tiger has killed 15 goats and left another three missing. "When I opened the goat house in the morning, dead goats were everywhere," said farm owner Guo Yulin. Oh, Ustin...

Terrible trio not the worst ever

Horrible Bosses 2. From Working Girl and Swimming with Sharks to The Devil Wears Prada, Hollywood has feasted on truly nasty power-mad bosses

Horrible Bosses 2 would have to go a long way to top the worst movie bosses ever. CONTRIBUTED

At one time or another everyone has fantasized about, if not killing, then at least doing grievous bodily harm to an employer. The guys in Horrible Bosses, the 2011 comedy starring Jason Bateman, Charlie Day and Jason Sudeikis, actually tried to make their fantasies reality.

The idea of squaring off against the boss man struck a chord with a lot of people and the movie raked in more than $100 million. So the inevitable sequel, Horrible Bosses 2, hit theatres earlier this week.

They'll have to go some ways to top the last trio of bad bosses: Jennifer Aniston as a foul-mouthed sexual predator with a bad habit of using laughing gas as foreplay; a manic boss with no scruples in the form of Kevin Spacey; and a drug-addled loser with a penchant for cocaine and masseuses who inherits a business from his papa, played by Colin Farrell, who berates his employees for coming in late after attending his dad's and their old boss's funeral.

"Well, maybe that excuse would have flown when my dad was here, but I'm in charge now."

But even that terrible trio pales in comparison to the worst movie bosses of all time.

One of the worst is Working Girl's Katharine Parker (Sigourney Weaver).

Parker is two-faced, and attempts to pass off her trusted secretary Tess McGill's (Melanie Griffith) ideas as her own.

Roger Ebert said of Weaver's performance, "From her first frame on the screen, she has to say all the right things while subtly suggesting that she may not mean any of them."

In the end, Tess teaches her a lesson about honesty and gets Katharine fired.

Katharine looks like a pussycat compared to Buddy Ackerman (Kevin Spacey), the tyrannical Hollywood producer in Swimming with Sharks.

"You are nothing!" he says to his new assistant Guy (Frank Whaley). "If you were in my toilet I wouldn't bother flushing it. My bathmat means more to me than you!"

Guy finally snaps, kidnaps Buddy and tortures him. But in an unexpected twist, the extreme behaviour earns Buddy's respect and Guy gets a promotion.

Finally, if you mix the swooping white hair and bad attitude of Cruella DeVille with the people skills of Vlad the Impaler, you will come up with Miranda Priestly, the worst boss in all of moviedom.

Played by Meryl Streep in The Devil Wears Prada, Priestly is the editrix of a fictional fashion magazine called Runway who never met an assistant she couldn't humiliate with a withering glance and a few choice words.

"By all means, move at a glacial pace," she says to newbie Andy Sachs (Anne Hathaway). "You know how that thrills me."

Steve Carell takes a risk, channels his dark side

Interview. Barely recognizable in a prosthetic nose, the actor better known as Michael Scott gets creepy in Foxcatcher

While discussing Foxcatcher — a bleak film, based on an unsettling tragedy, that made its way to screen after a punishing shoot — there's really only one instance where Steve Carell's voice rises above a sombre whisper.

In fact, he even breaks out laughing, and oddly enough, the topic at hand is director Bennett Miller's admission that he cast Carell as ominous multi-millionaire John du Pont because he saw a certain darkness in the usually goofy comic actor.

"As he describes it, he felt that my public persona is sort of a benign one — as was du Pont's. No one expected him to do the thing that he did," said Carell during the Toronto International Film Festival. "As he described it to me, he felt that it was beneficial to the movie to have someone who you wouldn't necessarily think could do something horrible. But at the same time, it happens, I guess he saw, as he describes it, there was a dark —"

Here, he trails off and giggles, in his unique way.

"I laugh about it. It sounds funny for me to describe him saying that there's a dark side to me," he said, chortling again, before collecting himself.

"But apparently he saw something, when we first met, that there was a quality there that he seemed to pick up on."

Carell would reward that hunch several times over with a chilling, transformative performance that should, if the pundits are to be believed, land him an Academy Award nomination.

The 52-year-old portrays du Pont, a hermetic eccentric who took a toxic interest in the life of an Olympic gold medallist wrestler, Mark Schultz (Channing Tatum), and his similarly decorated brother, Dave (Mark Ruffalo).

Director Bennett Miller chose Steve Carell (pictured here) for role because he saw dark side to the comic. CONTRIBUTED

The real Mark Schultz was a presence onset during the making of the film, as were others involved in the grisly tale.

Carell, vaguely recognizable under the weight of grey-toned facial prosthetics, seemed to skulk about the set in fitting isolation.

In the film, he drips his lines out slowly, wearing an expression of inscrutable distance — and seemingly that distance remained when the cameras stopped rolling.

"We didn't get to know each other as ourselves as we were shooting," said the Golden Globe winner of his castmates.

"It wasn't in a pretentious way. We weren't deciding to be all method-y, all serious actor-ish. But at the same time I think we both realized it would be better for the movie and for our characters' relationship to keep each other at a distance, and we did."

"I never really thought about it," he replied when asked whether expanding his onscreen repertoire appealed to him.

"I read the script and I thought it was an extraordinarily rich story. I never thought about whether I could or couldn't do it."

Exodus: Gods and Kings

What: The Ten Commandments story — most famously told in the 1956 Easter staple The Ten Commandments — gets told again, this time by a non-believer (Ridley Scott), with Christian Bale attempting to wipe away memories of Charlton Heston. Good luck!

How populist: Midwestern audiences ate up tiny religious films like God's Not Dead. In fact, that film made only $40 million less in America than the super-pricey Noah. Then again, while this is a full-on biblical epic, it's actually 100 minutes shorter than the Heston version.

Top Five

What: Chris Rock's third go at directing is an improv-heavy dramedy about a Chris Rock-like movie star (played by Chris Rock) hitting it off with a reporter (Rosario Dawson) the day of his new drama's release.

How populist: Rock made this independently, and it has a rough, handmade quality that could serve as an antidote to studio comedies, including ones Rock himself has made.

Annie

What: It's been 32 years since the John Huston movie of the sometimes blood-curdling stage musical, so here's one with Quvenzhane Wallis, plus Jamie Foxx as a toupéed Daddy Warbucks — or, wait, he's called Will Stacks? Where's the fun in that?

How populist: Little girls rarely get movies tailored to their desires, so maybe don't screw this one up?

Editor's choice

In The Interview, James Franco and Seth Rogen play reporters asked by the CIA to kill North Korea leader Kim Jong-un. CONTRIBUTED

The Interview

What: The movie that could get America destroyed by impoverished and ill-equipped North Korea stars Seth Rogen and James Franco as reporters asked by the CIA to kill Kim Jong-un.

How populist: Franco is secretly a prolific director of arty films; Rogen's own movies (like This is the End) are broad comedies. That said, the last time Rogen attempted to storm the holiday movie box office, it was the middling The Guilt Trip.

The Hobbit: The Battle of the Five Armies

What: Only five armies? The final chapter in an epic take on a 300-page novel intended for children finally comes to a close, and surely it will test how much Benedict Cumberbatch-voiced dragon fighting you can stand before going insane.

How populist: These things are bizarrely popular, especially considering how padded out and asswoundingly long they are. But hey, what's good for Martin Freeman is good for the world (maybe, maybe not).

Night at the Museum: Secret of the Tomb

What: Sad, but true; these are the most successful films Ben Stiller has ever been involved with. This one comes with a deep melancholic streak: Among its cast members are late, great performers Robin Williams and Mickey Rooney.

How populist: These are popular, but why?

Into the Woods

What: Meryl Streep, Johnny Depp and a bunch of other popular Hollywood stars round out Stephen Sondheim's beloved musical, in which fairy tales are mashed together.

How populist: Remember when movie musicals were dead? The only catch is Sondheim is a musical lover's musical writer, although his often-difficult and densely written tunes are here tacked onto a very clever pastiche — with a grim second half, incidentally.

December is an awkward time for movies. The Oscar race is winding down, with studios cranking out the last of their prestige pictures. But people have time off and want to watch silly cinema. There will be blockbusters, acclaimed movies and the third Night at the Museum entry. Here's how the divide goes this year.

MATT PRIGGE Metro World News in New York City

Prestige

Wild

What: Reese Witherspoon portrays Cheryl Strayed, who hiked about 1,800 kilometres of the Pacific Crest Trail alone. Don't worry: There are a lot of flashbacks, plus a script by Nick Hornby.

How prestigious: Witherspoon goes back to her indie roots, when she was one of the most exciting budding stars. Her Strayed is not only haunted — with a deeply traumatic history involving death, divorce and drugs — but also hilariously cranky.

The Gambler

What: A remake of one of the 1970s' grimmest films, this potty-mouthed drama (written by The Departed's William Monahan) stars Mark Wahlberg as a self-destructive rich kid who owes a ton of money to three different, scary people.

Editor's choice

Angelina Jolie's Unbroken tells the true story of Louie Zamperini, a WWII-era Olympian who spent 2-1/2 years in a POW camp. CONTRIBUTED

Unbroken

What: Three years ago, Angelina Jolie surprised holiday viewers with the super-bleak The Land of Milk and Honey, which she directed. She does it again, this time telling of Louie Zamperini, a WWII-era Olympian who spent 47 days on a raft and then another 2-1/2 years in a POW camp.

How prestigious: Jolie has the clout to do whatever she wants, but it's not yet clear what kind of filmmaker she is. This sounds like a classic "triumph of the human spirit" deal, but Milk and Honey was so dark and this may be, too.

How prestigious: Despite a new ending, this keeps the miserable '70s vibe, and Marky Mark, who can be dour in dramas, is as electric as in comedies like I Heart Huckabees.

Mr. Turner

What: English filmmaker Mike Leigh is back with another immaculately researched historical piece, this one about 19th-century sea painter J.M.W. Turner (Timothy Spall).

How prestigious: Leigh crafts his movies with the actors, and Spall is one of his frequent and best thespians. If Spall doesn't get an Oscar nod, he should get a special trophy for his amazing and frequent mouth noises.

Leviathan

What: Here's a Russian drama loosely based on the book of Job, about a drunken everyman whose life is gradually undone by an evil bureaucrat, an old friend and his neglected wife. It's also not to be confused with the 2012 documentary of the same name.

How prestigious: This is Russia's submission for the Best Foreign Language Film, from the very acclaimed Andrey Zvyagintsev (Elena).

Big Eyes

What: Tim Burton tries his hand at plain (not fantastical) drama, telling the true story of artist Margaret Keane (Amy Adams), whose husband (Christoph Waltz) falsely claimed her works were his.

How prestigious: The last time Burton did a biopic was Ed Wood, which nabbed Martin Landau an Oscar. This one shares the same writers, Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski, who know a thing or two about subverting the genre.

Selma

What: Of course Hollywood has never made a Martin Luther King Jr. movie. On the other hand, the first one was made by a black female filmmaker, the talented Ava DuVernay (Middle of Nowhere), with David Oyelowo as MLK.

How prestigious: This might be the most prestigious film of the year — and, amazingly, it might also be genuinely great. The focus is only on the Alabama voting rights marches in 1965, rather than his whole life, and those biopics tend to be the most rewarding.

American Sniper

What: So what did you do this year? Because, compared to Clint Eastwood, you did nothing. At 84, the actor-filmmaker has directed two features in 2014 alone, this one with Bradley Cooper as America's most "successful" sniper.

How prestigious: Eastwood needs a hit, his last run of pictures were neither critically nor commercially loved. That's not to say they weren't good.

Chocolate Pudding Cake. This dessert is the ultimate three-in-one

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

If you're looking to satisfy a voracious sugar craving, don't underestimate the power of a succulent pudding cake. With the richness of a cake plus the decadence of a rich, gooey sauce, this sweet concoction is sure to delight.

Ingredients

Sauce
- 3 cups (720 g) brown sugar
- 3/4 cup (75 g) cocoa powder, sifted
- 2 tsp cornstarch
- 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) water
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) 35% heavy cream
- 1/2 tsp (2.5 ml) vanilla extract

Cake
- 1 cup (250 ml) milk
- 1/2 cup (50 g) cocoa powder, sifted
- 1 1/2 cups (210 g) unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp baking soda
- 1 pinch of salt
- 1/2 cup (115 g) unsalted butter, softened
- 1 1/2 cups (315 g) sugar
- 2 eggs

This recipe serves 10. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

1. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Butter a 13 x 9-inch (33 x 23 cm) baking dish.

Sauce

1. In a saucepan over medium heat, combine the brown sugar, cocoa powder and cornstarch. Add the water and cream and bring to a boil, stirring with a whisk. Stir in the vanilla. Set aside.

Cake

1. In saucepan, bring milk and cocoa powder to boil, stirring with a whisk. Let cool.

2. In a bowl, combine the flour, baking soda and salt. Set aside.

3. In another bowl, cream butter and sugar with electric mixer. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat until smooth. At low speed, add dry ingredients alternately with cocoa mix. Spoon batter into prepared dish.

4. Carefully pour hot sauce over batter. Bake 45 minutes or until toothpick inserted in centre of the cake comes out clean. Serve warm or cool.

Greetings from the middle of Middle Earth.

At the invitation of the wine growers of New Zealand, I've journeyed to the bottom of the planet to get lips-on with the wines, regions and forward-thinking vineyard practices of this country.

Winemakers here love the land, and their sustainability practices monitor, measure and manage their geography to ensure it keeps giving for generations to come. Nearly all the wineries have adopted this philosophy.

Being internationally renowned for Sauvignon Blanc and Pinot Noir has come at a price. With their industry considered a two-trick pony, Kiwi winemakers struggle to get their Chardonnay, Pinot Gris, Riesling and red blends to the world.

After tasting a few hundred wines, I can say that New Zealand makes a wine for every palate.

A good place to start is Kim Crawford's 2014 Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc ($19.99 to $21.99), a citrus-infused, seafood-friendly white with zippy acidity and lemon/lime zest. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Paw-pular gift ideas for your furry friends

Doggone excited. Your pets do, in fact, know it's the holidays — so don't disappoint them

YLVA VAN BUUREN
For Metro

It's easy to remember to put the dog or cat on your Christmas list — they're the ones sniffing around under the tree or trying to climb it. Here are fabulous gift ideas for your four-legged friends.

Time to eat

Serve up breakfast, lunch or dinner in pawprint ceramic pet bowls.

They're practical and cute. $4.99 each, HomeSense.

Santa ... Guinea

Now you can dress the family guinea pig in a red velvet Santa hat and suit. (If you prefer, there are reindeer antlers for the guinea pig, too). $7.99, PetSmart.

Put up your hoodie

Dress up your pooch in a stylish Canadian North Fetch hoodie ... and bring on winter. North Fetch outdoor gear retails for $39.99 to $48.99, PetSmart.

Luv-A-Pet

Wrap up this lovable stuffed toy ... and give back, too. Ten per cent of each Luv-A-Pet purchase is donated to PetSmart Charities of Canada to help homeless pets. Now that feels good. $8.99, PetSmart.

Still life

Artist Kari Serrao will work from a photo to create an original encaustic painting on a wood panel (encaustic is painting with molten wax tinted with oil paint). 11x14-inch original, $275, kariserrao.com.

Fido football

Your dog will love the Nerf Green Crinkle Football. It's long-lasting and safe to play with inside or out. $9.99, Canadian Tire.

Fetch this

When treat time rolls around, give your dog one of these yummy bones. They're dipped in a white chocolate-flavoured confection that is safe for dogs. How sweet it is! Dog bones, $7.99, Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory, rockychoc.com.

Makes scents

Dogs will be dogs — and to keep them clean and fresh, they need regular baths. Choose one of these specially formulated shampoos: Shed relief; puppy; 2-in-1; oatmeal; and waterless for in between touch-ups. Essentials Shampoo, $9.99 each, Pet Valu.

Purr-fect

Your cat will love its private wicker digs. Wicker and Faux-Fur Cat Bed, $59.99, HomeSense.

Dog run

The Jogger's Leash is a convenient and comfortable way to take your best friend for a run. It features a flexible and comfortable neoprene waistband. There is a zippered pouch for keys, phone, waste bags and more. $24.99, Canadian Tire.

All Canadian dog

There's nothing more Canadian than a dog in a Hotel Doggy Moose sweater. In sizes XS-XL, $14.99, Target Canada.

Catnip fever

Wrap up the Fat Cat Classic Appeteaser, which is filled with high-test organic catnip for hours of fun. Package of two, $4.99, Canadian Tire. Maybe your cat would prefer the Cosmic Pet Corknip Totter Mouse, $8.49, Pet Valu.

Canine stocking

The stockings were hung by the chimney with care — now you can hang up one for your dog, too. Dog Stocking filled with all sorts of treats for your furry friend. $11.99, Pet Valu.

A wild life

Comfortable animal prints dog bed has a removable polyester fleece cover — so it's easy to wash. Fits dogs up to 75 pounds. Animal Planet, $29.99, Sears Canada.

Kibble counter

This automatic, battery-operated pet food dispenser has a built-in LCD control panel that lets you customize meal times and portions. Animal Plant, $49.99, Sears Canada.

On Prancer!

Now your pooch can be part of all the reindeer games. Reindeer Sweater, $19.99, Marshalls.

Clockwise from top left, Dog Stocking, $11.99, Pet Valu; Ceramic pet bowls $4.99 each, HomeSense; Cosmic Pet Corknip Totter Mouse, $8.49, Pet Valu; Guinea pig costume, $7.99, PetSmart; The Jogger's leash, $24.99, Canadian Tire; Canadian North Fetch hoodie, from $39.99, PetSmart; Wicker and Faux-Fur Cat Bed, $59.99, HomeSense; Nerf Green Crinkle Football, $9.99, Canadian Tire; Dog bones, $7.99, Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory.

Whether it's through a smartphone or the lens of an expensive camera, there are so many fun ways to capture the moment. Here are some of the best cameras and accessories to put under the tree this year for the shutterbug in your family.

Nikon D750 HD-SLR
$2,549.95 (body only)

It may not be cheap, but Nikon's latest professional camera sure packs a lot of features. The lightweight, carbon fibre D750 houses a newly developed 34.3MP FX-format CMOS sensor, a 51-point autofocus system, and a pivoting viewfinder to let photographers snap photos at any angle. This is also Nikon's first HD-SLR with built-in Wi-Fi for easy photo sharing and remote capture.

Sony Cyber-Shot DSC-RX100
$549.99

Small enough to fit in your pocket, but don't underestimate just how powerful Sony's latest point-and-shoot camera is. Featuring an ultra-bright Carl Zeiss f/1.8 lens, and 20.2-megapixel Exmor CMOS image sensor, shutterbugs can expect razor-sharp images, even in low-light conditions. Face detection registers up to eight faces and with so many built-in, shot-enhancing features, you will always have perfect colour, no matter if you are shooting indoors or at sunset.

Polaroid Socialmatic Camera
$299

A camera for the hipsters. This unique 14MP camera lets you share photos in one of two ways. Built-in Wi-Fi automatically lets you upload pics to popular social media websites, or you can rock it old school by printing them instantly from the camera itself using special ink-free paper. There is also a 2MP rear camera for selfies.

GoPro HERO4 Black
$549.99

A fast new processor allows this updated action cam to shoot 4K video at 30fps and 1080p HD video at 120 fps. The HERO4 Black also features a new Night Photo and Night Lapse mode for customized exposure settings when you want to shoot in low-light conditions. Don't forget the dozens of mounts and cases available to tailor this powerful camera to your needs.

Phantom 2 Vision+
$1,229 US

Take your photography to a new level. This easy-to-fly drone has a built-in camera to snap photos and shoot 1080p HD video while soaring high above the action. Unique stabilizers help reduce wobbly shots while the GPS auto-pilot system offers position holding for stable hovering. Users can download an app to control the camera, and get point-of-view shots directly on their smartphone.

Camalapse 4
$34.99

A rotating stand for your smartphone or compact camera that helps you take high-quality, time-lapse videos like a pro. The twisting stand uses a built-in timer to rotate a full 360 degrees in 60 minutes. Works with small cameras, Android, and iOS devices.

HTC RE
$199

The camera that never turns off. Designed to capture life's impromptu moments, the RE is always on. Simply press a button and you will instantly record 1080p HD video or snap a 16MP photo and stream it to your smartphone. The 146-degree wide angle lens negates the need for a viewfinder, but if you really want one you can use your smartphone as one.

Raptors say it's way too early to talk title

NBA. Red-hot, early-season Dinos say ESPN's lofty projections are falling on deaf ears at Air Canada Centre

DeMar DeRozan, left, and Lou Williams packed a powerful 1-2 punch on Wednesday, scoring 27 and 22 points respectively in the Raptors' 126-115 win over the Hawks in Atlanta. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greivis Vasquez was speaking to a large circle of reporters Thursday when DeMar DeRozan squeezed his way in through the crowd and affectionately draped an arm around Vasquez's neck.

This season's Toronto Raptors are a tight-knit bunch. And on a day ESPN pegged the Raptors' chances at winning the NBA title at a whopping 41 per cent, they scoffed. Anything said outside of their gym, they said, is all just noise.

"We don't care about nothing ESPN is saying, honestly," DeRozan said. "Nobody cares what anybody says. We care about everybody that's got this Raptors jersey on. Everything else don't matter to us, man."

"We've got our confidence," Vasquez added. "We don't need anybody to talk about us, whether it's good or bad."

The Raptors practised the day after their 126-115 win at Atlanta that kept Toronto even with Memphis atop the NBA standings (13-2), and boosted their win streak to six games.

Thursday's ESPN's Hollinger Playoff Odds gave the Raptors a 100 per cent chance at making the playoffs, and a 71 per cent chance of making the NBA final.

They're lofty predictions never before seen in Toronto, but Raptors coach Dwane Casey similarly shrugged them off.

"I'm not a betting man. How many more games have we got to go? A lot of games to go. I'm not putting any credence in that," Casey said.

When someone asked if the predictions had at least put a smile on his face, he answered: "No. Not at all. None whatsoever. I live in reality. All I know is we have a tough game (Friday) night."

The Raptors host the Dallas Mavericks (11-5) on Friday amid a huge buzz around Canada's lone NBA franchise. What would have normally been a relatively quiet practice Thursday drew a couple of dozen journalists.

The players say they're not looking at records, or getting caught up in the buzz. They're just enjoying playing.

"This is the best team I've played with by far," DeRozan said. "Not just basketball-wise, either. Personnel. Everybody gets along, everybody has a great relationship with one another. That goes a long way ... the chemistry that we have is amazing."

That even goes for his high school teams, DeRozan added.

Asked what he's thankful for — Thursday was Thanksgiving in the U.S. — DeRozan answered, his arm still slung around Vasquez: "Having teammates like Greivis. Honestly. Having teammates like all these guys here. Because it makes every day easier, even on the tough days, you find something to joke about, laugh about, have fun about."

Google, Twitter at odds over Grey Cup winner

Split. Ticats get a slim win on Google, Stamps lead slightly on Twitter

LUKE SIMCOE
luke.simcoe@metronews.ca

Despite the reams of data they collect from their users, Google and Twitter can't seem to agree on who will win this year's Grey Cup.

With two days to go before Sunday's game between the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Calgary Stampeders, the tech titans are split on which team will take home the trophy.

Twitter has partnered with the Canadian Football League to give users a custom Grey Cup voting app.

At press time, Twitter users were leaning towards the Stampeders. It's a tight race, however, with Calgary leading 52 per cent to 48 per cent.

The Stampeders' Bo Levi Mitchell checks his phone with the Grey Cup on Thursday in Vancouver. PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Over at Google, an equally slim majority of users are searching for the Ticats.

Google Canada spokesperson Aaron Brindle attributes Hamilton's slight lead in searches to Sunday's semifinal victory against the Montreal Alouettes. The clash featured some pre-game trash talk from Montreal players and a standout performance by Ticats receiver Brandon Banks.

"That was a really exciting game," Brindle said. "And when you see those kinds of dramatic moments, that's what draws people online."

The CFL has vowed to make this year's Grey Cup "the most social ever," and is offering fans new ways to join the online conversation. Twitter users can follow the action on the #GreyCup hashtag. There's also a "tweet-up" party scheduled Saturday in Vancouver featuring the league's most prolific tweeters.

"The CFL has really embraced Twitter. You can see them leveraging the power of the platform," said Christopher Doyle, director of media partnerships for Twitter Canada.

Doyle is proud of the way Twitter connects Grey Cup fans with players.

In Calgary, Stamps quarterback Bo Levi Mitchell has encouraged fans to change their Twitter avatars to the team's logo, while running back Jon Cornish has been trading jokes on Twitter with Mayor Naheed Nenshi.

"It's fascinating," Doyle said. "They're really these 'only on Twitter' moments."

8-1 away from home

Road success gives Stamps the edge

For the first time since 2011, the Grey Cup will be a neutral-site game, a factor that gives the Calgary Stampeders a big advantage over the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The Stampeders had a CFL-best 8-1 road record en route to posting a league-leading 15-3 overall mark. The Montreal Alouettes were the lone team to earn a home win over Calgary, claiming a 31-15 decision Sept. 21.

Neither quarterback Bo Levi Mitchell nor CFL rushing leader Jon Cornish played in that contest, but both will suit up Sunday. The Stampeders committed three turnovers, including two by backup Drew Tate (interception, fumble).

Hamilton finished tied with Calgary and Edmonton for the league's best regular-season home record at 7-2, anchored by its stellar 6-0 mark at Tim Hortons Stadium. The Ticats stretched that to seven straight victories with their 40-24 East Division final win Sunday against Montreal.

But the Ticats struggled on the road with a 2-7 record. Only expansion Ottawa (0-9) was worse.

Calgary won both regular-season meetings between the division leaders, although only by a combined 13 points. The two teams haven't played since the Stampeders' 30-20 victory Aug. 16 at McMaster University, where Hamilton played early this season while its new stadium was being finished.

Pick — Calgary.

METRO TICATS VS. METRO STAMPS

This Sunday, the boys from Steeltown take on Team My Little Pony for the Earl Grey's big silver saucer.

Oh, sorry, the "Stampeders."

The players in red and black (not to be confused with those expansion imposters, the Redblacks) hail from an oily, sandy city that somehow thought "Cowtown" was a flattering nickname. It's a place where they measure the size of your hat in gallons, and once a year everyone dresses up like Marty McFly from the third Back to the Future movie.

Calgary is known for not having the biggest mall in North America and that animal riding … thingy. I'm sure you get used to the smell of horse manure eventually.

Hamilton, on the other hand, literally invented Tim Hortons, and is home to the CFL Hall of Fame. We've got Eugene Levy and Martin Short — you've got Alison Redford. Get on our level.

So the Stamps have the best record in the CFL. Holy Mackinaw. Oskee-whoop-dee-freakin-do. You know what we have? Momentum. Like the raging fires of a Hamilton steel mill, the Ticats are red hot right now. We're stoked to get another shot at the cup after last year, and I'd bet money in the (Brandon) Banks that the Cats take Jon Cornish and the rest of the hens, and eat 'em raw.

Before we get down to business, I just have to ask one question — what exactly is a Tiger-Cat?

I'm pretty sure that's not even a real thing, maybe some legendary creature on par with a Lizardman or Yeti.

I guess we shouldn't expect much more from a city boasting claims to fame like the 25-cent Timbit and being in close proximity to Toronto. Oh right, you produce steel and have a couple waterfalls, I'm sure the tourists are just pouring in for a closer look.

See, the things I like about Calgary are we actually had a working stadium ready at the start of the season, we had some worthy teams to compete against in our division and our quarterback is playing un-BO-lievably well.

I was reading that your new mayor hedged a tad on taking a bet from ours — sounds like a smart man. Sunday's game will be over in seconds, your Tabbies' roars will be reduced to purrs after a few 40-yard runs straight through that poor excuse of a defence courtesy of Jon Cornish.

Grey Cup bet. Hamilton, Calgary mayors ante up

This year's Grey Cup bet between the mayors of Calgary and Hamilton has a whole lot of food on the line.

Calgary's Naheed Nenshi says the leader of the losing city will have to donate 45 kilograms of food to the winning city's food bank.

Nenshi is using his Facebook page to encourage people at Grey Cup parties to hold similar bets.

He is also letting it be known that the losing mayor will have to wear the victorious team's jersey at an upcoming city council meeting.

Nenshi says it seemed fair not to make Hamilton mayor-elect Fred Eisenberger wear the Stampeders jersey at his swearing-in next week.

The Stampeders and the Tiger-Cats face off in the CFL's championship game on Sunday.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You have been known to jump to conclusions and according to the planets you made a value judgment recently that you can now see was totally wrong.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
The planets warn you cannot afford to give anyone the benefit of the doubt where financial matters are concerned. Demand evidence before parting with your cash!

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
When you want something enough you let nothing stand in your way, which is good. What is not so good is if you climb over other people to get it. Be more diplomatic.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Just because one thing you tried went wrong does not mean you are a failure and anyone who says you are is not a friend and must be cut out of your life right away.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
If a friend asks you to do something unethical, refuse — even if you owe them a favour. The best favour you can do them is pointing out why they need to rethink their attitude.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Today's cosmic influences will offer you the chance to break the deadlock in a long dispute. Can you go forward together?

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Someone will say something today that is flattering, but don't let it go to your head. If you allow your pride to grow it may get in the way of seeing what still needs to be done.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
As Mercury moves into the money area of your chart you're free to make changes to your financial situation. Take others' needs into account but your own needs must come first.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
There are things in your world that have become predictable and need shaking up. The entry of Mercury into your sign today will encourage you to begin new habits and routines.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
A parting of ways may be necessary but it does not have to be painful. The simple fact is you have moved on and so have they, but in different directions. That's OK.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
There is no point dwelling on events you can't change. Focus on what might be rather than on what has been.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
What happens today will give you the sense of perspective you have been lacking. You may have to admit that a wrong turn has been taken. It's no big deal.

ShenYun

"Demonstrating the highest realm in arts, Shen Yun inspires the performing arts world."

—Chi Cao, lead actor in Mao's Last Dancer and principal dancer with Birmingham Royal Ballet

CLASSICAL CHINESE DANCE

CLASSICAL CHINESE DANCE is the cornerstone of each Shen Yun performance and one of the most demanding and expressive art forms in the world. Incorporating profound wisdom from each dynasty and era—along with a vast repertoire of tumbling techniques—it is the epitome of China's traditional aesthetics, shaped through five millennia of civilization.

Experience what dance can be.

DAZZLING ETHNIC & FOLK DANCES

Along with classical Chinese dance, timeless ethnic and folk dances—from snowcapped Tibetan peaks to lavish Mongolian grasslands—fill Shen Yun's stage with colour and energy, awakening the joyful spirit of the Middle Kingdom.
